DECLARATION

I understand that:

- The people listed under the section "Beneficiary Details" of this form must be my spouse, child, financial dependent, interdependent or a legal personal representative of my estate when I die.
- It is my responsibility to ensure that my non-lapsing binding death benefit nomination is valid and remains in effect.
- I can change or cancel this information at any time.
- If this nomination is invalid, or has not been received by Student Super Professional Super, when I die my death benefit will be paid at the Trustee's discretion as guided by superannuation law.
- My beneficiaries and I will be bound by the provisions of the Tidswell Master Superannuation Plan Trust Deed, and Student Super Professional Super accepts no responsibility for the correct nomination of beneficiaries.

I have read the information in this form and I understand the terms on which this information is made. I have also read the Student Super Professional Super Privacy Policy and Information Collection Notice and I understand how Student Super Professional Super will use my personal information.

Legal Personal Representative

Your Legal Personal Representative (LPR) is the executor named in your Will or the administrator of your estate. If you nominate a LPR to receive your super benefit in the event of your death, your LPR will distribute your benefit according to your Will.

Spouse

Your spouse can be a person who is legally married to you, or a person with whom you are in a genuine de facto relationship, regardless of gender.

Children

Your children, of any age, can be your or your spouse's children; adopted, step or ex-nuptial children; or children as defined under the Family Law Act 1975.

Financial Dependant

Being financially dependent does not necessarily mean that the person depends on you totally for financial support. Financial dependency means that at the time of your death, the person relied on you to meet or assist in meeting daily living expenses such as utility and household expenses, rent and shared financial commitments like mortgage repayments or other loans.

Interdependency Relationship

An interdependency relationship exists where you and another person satisfy all of the following four requirements at the time of your death:

- (a) You had a close personal relationship;
- (b) You lived together;
- (c) One or each provided financial support to the other; and
- (d) One or each provided domestic support and personal care to the other.

An interdependency relationship also exists where two people have a close personal relationship, but the other requirements aren't satisfied because either or both persons suffer from a physical, intellectual or psychiatric disability.

Binding Nomination

If you have a valid binding death benefit nomination in place at the time of your death, the Trustee must pay your super benefit as a lump sum to each of your nominated beneficiaries in the proportions you direct. If a person you nominate as a dependant is no longer a dependant at the time of your death, or dies before you do, your binding nomination will no longer be valid and the Trustee will have full discretion over the distribution of the death benefit. In addition, your binding nomination will no longer be valid if your benefit is subject to a court order or family law split. A binding nomination can be renewed or revoked by you at any time.

Non-Binding Nomination

A non-binding nomination confirms your preference of how you would like your super benefit to be paid in the event of your death. The Trustee will take your non-binding nomination into account, but is not bound to follow it and retains absolute discretion in how the benefit is distributed (guided by superannuation law) after your death. A non-binding nomination lasts forever and doesn't need to be updated, unless your circumstances or preferences change.
